

These sculptures have been made from used tires, and yet by looking at the image you could hardly tell, which is what eco art is all about really, creating something nice from something that is potentially harmful, absolutely great!

